An Oregon state lawmaker who has been charged after he allegedly allowed protesters into the closed state Capitol building during a debate over Covid-19 restrictions is seen in new video appearing to give insights into how to access the Capitol, which led to a scuffle between protesters and police.

NASA's Juno spacecraft will travel to 645 miles above the surface of the solar system's largest moon, Ganymede, on Monday.

This thing is a true marvel in engineering in being able to survive the trip and still function.

Athletes have been complaining about how they're treated by fans for years. As the outrage over recent incidents in which fans targeted NBA players with abhorrent behavior shows, they're finally being heard.

Chamath Palihapitiya says that the investment tool lets ordinary people get rich off startups. It may be hype — but hype can be its own economic engine.

There were few, if any, fans in NFL stadiums last season. Taking their place were thousands of cardboard cutouts representing fans, former players, celebrities, and even pets. As the league returns to business as usual, what happened to them all?

A California mom shocked the crowd at the Padres game with this incredible feat of multitasking.

The long-awaited Pentagon report on unidentified aerial phenomena appears to deliver more questions than answers.

In 2005, an alternate reality game asked players to find a man named Satoshi based just on a photograph. Fifteen years later, the mystery was solved.
